

ABSTRACT

5 A diode having a press-fit base includes an axially extending mounting region for a semiconductor chip and a head wire affixed to the semiconductor chip. The head wire has a stepped wire connection or a region which forms a sealed housing together with the press-fit base and a sleeve. The cavities produced in the housing are filled with encapsulating material for stabilizing purposes, encapsulating material being present only inside the housing.